Foreword

Much of the material listed in this bibliography is in an ephemeral format; the leaflets, posters and handouts prepared by organisations to promote a cause. It is a potentially useful source for the writing of political and social history, of which the Fryer Library has a modest collection. One of the reasons for the publication of this bibliography is to bring this collection to the notice of researchers.

Many of the organizations listed emerged around a specific issue and remained in existence only until that issue had been resolved or gone out of fashion. Often their names were not formally established and were subject to variation. Greg George's historical notes do a great deal to sort out the resulting confusion.

Work on this bibliography grew from the Fryer Librarian's interest in clarifying the Fryer Library's collection policy for primary source material. One starting point was to analyse the primary material which has been collected over the years in order to identify existing strengths. From such an analysis a collection policy could be developed which would ensure that the collection was as relevant as possible to probable future research and within the likely financial resources which the Library would have available. Ephemeral material relating to Queensland is one of several categories of primary material which the Fryer Library holds.

Special collections departments within university libraries always face a difficulty in asserting their staffing needs for both reader service and technical service activities in competition with the more obvious demands of the much more numerous users of printed materials. Fryer Library has long been fortunate in receiving assistance in purchasing from the research funds of interested teaching departments. In the case of this particular bibliography such financial assistance was extended to include the employment of a research assistant, Greg George. His work supplemented the professional library knowledge of Joy Guyatt and our thanks are due to the departments of Anthropology and Sociology, Economics, Government and History for financing his employment.

Finally the University Library is indebted to Joy Guyatt whose enthusiasm and commitment drove the project along. It is the last before her retirement of several major contributions which she has made to the Library. It must give her special satisfaction that this publication is so obviously of assistance to scholars in an area in which she has taken a particular interest.

Acknowledgements

Financial assistance by the Departments of Anthropology and Sociology, Economics, Government and History in the University of Queensland made possible the appointment of Greg George, who wrote the historical notes.

Paula Wright of the University of Queensland secretarial staff applied patience and skill to the production of the word-processor listing which is the basis of this publication.

Guide to Use

Definition of "political organization"

Political organizations are defined for the purposes of this publication as political parties, political pressure groups and political awareness groups. Some are Queensland organizations and some are organizations, based elsewhere, active in Queensland.

Publications listed

As well as the publications of political organizations, the political publications of Queensland organizations which do not have overtly political objectives are included. In addition some important items of political organizations, such as policy statements and substantial periodicals, published outside Queensland are listed, provided that the organizations are either active in, or are based in Queensland.

Order of listing

The list is in alphabetical order using the name of the organization shown in its constitution or other authoritative publication.

Date and place of publication

The publications frequently do not show date or place of publication. They are dated within a decade and a place of publication assigned from internal evidence or other sources.

Historical notes

Brief notes covering the dates of operation, objectives and some of the publicists of the organizations are provided where possible. Sometimes bibliographical details of references which might help the beginning researcher are noted.

The objectives of an organization are, as far as possible, drawn from the organization's constitution, statement of aims, or a standard reference work. Otherwise objectives were determined by contacting a publicist or by inference from the available publications. Objectives are usually in paraphrased or summarised form.

The term "publicist" includes office holders, writers, public speakers and/or active members.

Name index.

The name index covers the names of the organizations listed, commonly used acronyms and variant names and the names of those publicists listed in the brief histories which precede the list of publications for each organization. The name index also includes periodical titles, personal and corporate authors, and the names of groups for which the University of Queensland Libraries do not hold any publications but which are connected with groups for which publications are held.

Issue index

An additional approach to the publications listed is provided by "issue".

Issue
headings

The compilers chose to assign "issue" headings rather than structured subject headings to indicate the focus of interest in any publication. In general, broad headings are used to avoid prescribing boundaries which should be established by the researcher for him or herself. Publications concerning organizational matters, or which cover a number of issues have not been given issue headings.

Marginal
codes

Marginal codes on the pages referred to in the issue index facilitate the identification of publications dealing with those issues. Issue headings and codes are listed on pages v-viii.

Additional information

A listing of additional items may be obtained from the Fryer Librarian, University of Queensland.

The compilers would welcome information which might lead to the removal of inaccuracies and inadequacies from the text and to the opportunity to acquire additional material for the Fryer Memorial Library. Correspondence should be addressed to the Fryer Librarian.

ABORIGINAL AND ISLANDERS COUNCIL - BRISBANE (1964-)

Known as the Brisbane Tribal Council

Objectives - To assist Aborigines and Islanders in coping with all aspects of life in and around Brisbane, to promote the well-being of Aborigines and Islanders, to encourage the education of Aborigines and Islanders, to preserve the cultures of the indigenous inhabitants of Australia and of Torres Strait Islanders and to provide premises for the Council.

Publicists - Don Brady, Cheryl Buchanan, Sidney Coolwell, Don Davidson, Alice James, Steve Mam, Ada Rechendorff, Denis Walker, Len Watson, Sam Watson.

Notes: The Council was set up as a result of a survey of opinion in the Aboriginal and Islander community which led to a decision to form an organization completely controlled by Aborigines and Islanders. It was to deal with matters such as employment, legal aid, housing, sport and social activities, education and health. It is part of the network centred on the National Tribal Council which is now defunct.

ABORIGINES AND TORRES STRAIT ISLANDERS CORPORATION (QUEENSLAND ELECTORATE AREA) FOR LEGAL SERVICES (1981-)

Previously the Aborigines and Torres Strait Islanders Legal Service
(Queensland) Ltd. (1972-1980)

Objectives - To provide legal representation for the black community.

Publicists - Jim Evans, P. Richards, Mervyn Riley.

Notes: The Corporation is controlled by the black community through National Aboriginal Conference electorates. The change of name in 1980-81 reflected the establishment of this control.

ABORTION LAW REFORM ASSOCIATION (Q'LD) (1971-1972)

Became Children by Choice Association

Objectives - To reform laws which make abortion a criminal offence; to establish family planning clinics; to liberalise provisions regarding contraceptives.

Publicists - Liz Pasmore, Meridyth Sauer, Trevor Sauer

Notes: The Association was formed as a result of public meetings held by the Humanist Society of Queensland (at the instigation of the New South Wales Abortion Law Reform Association). An initial meeting in November 1970 led to the inauguration of the Association in April 1971.

ABSCHOL (1953-)

Objectives - To promote and aid higher education, including secondary, technical and tertiary education, for Aborigines; to inform university students and the community about the problems faced by Aborigines in furthering their education; to give scholarships to eligible students.

Publicists - Budger Davidson, Jenny McLean, Denis Walker.

Notes: ABSCHOL was the Aboriginal Affairs Department of the National Union of Australian University Students. Its activities became wider than its stated objectives especially when the Australian Government began a secondary school scholarships scheme. The national Australian Union of Students (the continuation of N.U.A.U.S.) dropped the name ABSCHOL in favour of "Race Relations Department". The University of Queensland group retained the name ABSCHOL. Its activities emphasized close links with the Brisbane black community. It became inoperative in the late seventies. ACTION FOR WORLD DEVELOPMENT (1973-)

Formerly the Joint Secretariat on Action for World Development (1971-1973).

Objectives - A society characterised by: equality and caring relationships between persons; communities of trust, respect, and co-operation; participation of all in decision-making processes; solidarity with all who act on behalf of justice; balance between contemplation and action.

Publicists - Ray Bush, Rod Girle, Michael Hales, Coralie Kingston, Mal McKenna, Noel Preston, Brian Towler.

Notes: A.W.D. was the result of the concern of all churches with the imbalance in world economies. Consequently the Australian Council of Churches and the Australian Episcopal (Bishops) Conference of the Catholic Church initiated a conference (1970), a joint secretariat and a study programme (1972). The result was the formation of A.W.D. Since then A.W.D. has become increasingly autonomous and now describes itself as an ecumenical network of people throughout Australia gathered into small groups, working for personal change and structural change which brings about justice, liberation and human development in their own lives and in the lives of others.

AMALGAMATED ENGINEERING UNION (AUSTRALIAN SECTION) (1920-1972)

Formerly the Amalgamated Society of Engineers (1852-1920). Became the Amalgamated Metal Workers Union (1972-1976)

Objectives - The control of industry in the interest of the community; the organization of all eligible workers and the amalgamation of all unions in the industry to obtain just hours, wages and conditions; the settling of disputes between members and employees by collective bargaining and agreement, withdrawal of labor or otherwise; the provision of benefits to members; the issuing of publications to further the objects of the Union and of unionism; the extension of co-operative production to assist in altering the competitive system of industry for a co-operative system; the combination with other associations in the interests of labor and unionism and any other purpose or participation to further those interests.

Publicists - See References

Notes: The Amalgamated Society of Engineers was part of an international union, as was the Amalgamated Engineering Union until 1968 when, as a prelude to eventual amalgamation with two other metal unions in 1972, it severed its links with the parent British union.

AUSTRALIAN DEMOCRATIC UNION (QUEENSLAND DIVISION) (1952-)

Name used previously in 1906 and 1918.

Objectives - To provide opportunities for private ownership with minimum restrictions on free trade; to restore primary production and decentralize population; to provide defence against external and internal threats by communism; to reduce taxation by cuts in the public service; to uphold the Constitution and devolve power; to institute an electorate's right of recall over its representative and the right of electors to initiate referenda; to maintain full employment; to end all monopolistic practices; to free the Australian pound and make it convertible throughout the world; to maintain the value of the pound against inflation and to fix politician's salaries.

Publicists - Raphael Cilento, Colin Clark, C.E. Griffiths, H.W. Herbert, E.J. Redding, Charles Ross, C.W. Russell.

Notes: The name Australian Democratic Union was used in federal politics by George Reid and the free traders in 1906 and in Queensland politics by anti-Labor bodies in 1918. The Union was formed originally in Queensland by a group which included Raphael Cilento, Colin Clark and the former Country Party M.P. Charles W. Russell. It saw itself as a reaction to the failure of the Liberal-Country Party Federal Government to implement the policies on which it was elected in 1949. The Union became established in other states, especially New South Wales. The Union was not intended to be a political party but, with some division of opinion, it became very closely associated with the Democratic Party of Australia which stood candidates in the 1953 Senate elections (Cilento, Herbert, Russell). In the 1972 State elections Russell again stood (for the seat of Condamine), this time on behalf of the Union. None of these candidates was elected. The Union was still active in Toowoomba in the early 1970's.

AUSTRALIAN DEMOCRATS (1977-)

Objectives - To serve the best interests of the whole community; to reconcile capital and labour; to improve human relationships through honesty, tolerance, compassion and mutual obligation; to act on population, resources and conservation problems; to support multiculturalism, national planning, decentralization, participatory democracy in government and industry, a plurality of lifestyles and greater equality in incomes and of social services; to support rural industry and to link country and city; to foster community spirit; to encourage individual initiative and to recognize the need for self-fulfilment.

Publicists - Refer to mid-year (July) issue of Queensland Australian Democrats Newsletter.

Notes: It is estimated that about a third of the Australia Party's membership has shifted allegiance to the Australian Democrats.

AUSTRALIAN LABOR PARTY (QUEENSLAND BRANCH) (1918-)

Previously the Queensland Labour Party

Objectives - Democratic socialisation of industry, distribution and exchange to the extent necessary to eliminate exploitation and other anti-social features in these fields. To achieve this the A.L.P. stands for: greater equality of wealth, opportunity and economic and political power; establishment of public enterprises; Australian democratic control and ownership of resources; a competitive non-monopolistic Australian owned private sector within social guidelines; the right to own private property; industrial democracy; equal access and rights to employment, education, information, communications, technology, housing, health, welfare, cultural and leisure activities and the law; security of the family; abolition of poverty; diversity in culture and lifestyles and elimination of discrimination; Aboriginal land rights; civil liberties; environmental and resources management; constitutional reform and peace, disarmament and national self-determination.

Publicists -See Appendices in Murphy, D. et al. (eds.) Prelude to Power: The Rise of the Labour Party in Queensland 1885-1915. Jacaranda, Brisbane, 1970 and in Murphy, D. et al. (eds.) Labor in Power: the Labor Party and Governments in Queensland 1915-1957. University of Queensland Press, Brisbane, 1980. For 1957 to 1968 see Labor-in-Politics Convention Official Records and Decisions. For current publicists see post-conference issue of Labor Review, or Official Trades Union Directory (Trades and Labor Council of Queensland).

AUSTRALIAN LABOR PARTY (QUEENSLAND BRANCH) (contd.)

Notes: Existence of a party referred to as the Labor Party dates from 1892 when the first Labor-in-Politics Convention was held and the first party endorsed candidates were elected. From 1905 to 1918 the party was called the Queensland Labour Party (not to be confused with the Queensland Labor Party of 1957-1962). In 1918 the current name was adopted.

AUSTRALIAN LABOUR FEDERATION. GENERAL COUNCIL (1889-1914)

Objectives - The nationalisation of all sources of wealth and all means of producing and distributing wealth; the conducting by the state authority of all production and all exchange; the pensioning by the state authority of all children, aged and invalid citizens; the saving by the state authority of such proportion of the joint wealth production as may be requisite for instituting, maintaining and increasing national capital and for maintaining education and sanitary institutions; the just division among all citizens of the state of all wealth production, less only that for common purposes; the above reorganization to begin at once and be pursued until social justice is achieved; in parliament universal, white, adult suffrage, no plural voting, no nominee or property qualification chamber and equal electoral districts.

Publicists - Gilbert Casey, J.H. Coyne, M. Fanning, T. Foley, Albert Hinchcliffe, William Lane, C. McDonald, R. Morrison, Charles Seymour, J.C. Stewart. See also The Worker (1890-1914).

Notes: Throughout its existence the A.L.F. was primarily based in Queensland. The A.L.F. aimed to combine both the industrial and political functions of a united labor movement. Consequently, as well as providing a union of unions, the A.L.F. formed a Workers' Political Association. The A.L.F. never became an Australian federation though it replaced the N.S.W. Trades and Labor Council from 1894 to 1900 and it combined political and industrial functions in Western Australia from 1908. The main function of the A.L.F. in Queensland through most of its existence was to act as a body controlling The Worker newspaper. However it had a significant role in various strikes. In 1914 proposals by the Australian Workers' Union that the A.L.F. be dissolved and The Worker taken over by themselves were accepted by the Queensland Provincial Council of the A.L.F.

AUSTRALIAN LEAGUE OF RIGHTS - QUEENSLAND COUNCIL (1960-)

Objectives - To promote loyalty to the Christian concept of God and the Crown, and to the country as part of the British Commonwealth; to advocate competitive individual enterprise; to defend private ownership; to expose government-by-regulation; to secure individual rights especially by defence of the Constitution; to defend the Rule of Law; to stress the value of the Common Law; to expose the destruction of rights and liberties; to emphasize the value of Legislative Councils and the Senate; to expose and oppose all anti-British propaganda and actions.

Publicists - Jeremy Lee, Jean Luscombe, Charles Pinwill

Notes: A League of Rights was formed in South Australia in 1946. In succeeding years they were formed in some other states, including a brief appearance in Brisbane in 1949. The Australian League of Rights was formed in 1960. It is associated with the Australian Heritage Society, Enterprise Queensland, Ladies in Line against Communism, the Save our State Campaign, the Christian Institute for Individual Freedom (all based in Queensland), the Conservative Speakers' Club and the Institute of Economic Democracy. It organises Voters' Policy Associations and through these it has worked as a pressure group within the National Party. With the Leagues of Rights in New Zealand, Britain and Canada it forms the Crown Commonwealth League of Rights which is part of the World Anti-Communist League.

Formerly the Australian Tramway Employees' Association (1911-1951)

Objectives - To uphold the rights of combination of labour and to improve, protect and foster the best interests of its members; to take all necessary steps for the protection and safety of the members; to take action under any Arbitration or other Act to secure satisfactory conditions in respect of wages, hours, the age of employees or other conditions; to provide various benefits and further the social enjoyment of members; to establish a newspaper; to redress grievances and secure the rights and privileges of members by collective bargaining or to lawfully take any step that will give the Association the fullest power in arranging the terms of members' employment; to secure political representation to ensure social justice and to support nationalisation of all public transport.

Publicists - See the Official Trades Union Directory (Trades and Labor Council of Queensland). For earlier periods see the Newsletter and Tramways Journal.

AUSTRALIAN TRAMWAY & MOTOR OMNIBUS EMPLOYEES' ASSOCIATION (contd.)

Notes: Attempts were made from 1887 to organize a Tramways and Omnibus Union but employer opposition led to its collapse. Renewed attempts began in 1904 and by 1911 an Australian Tramway Employees' Association began public existence after working in secret. The Union affiliated with the Australian Labour Federation in 1912. Further employer opposition to the Union's existence led to the Brisbane General Strike of 1912.

AUSTRALIAN WORKERS' UNION (1904-)

Formerly the Amalgamated Workers' Union (1891-1904)

Objectives - To regulate and protect the conditions of labor, the relations between workers and between workers and employers; to regulate conditions on the conduct of the trade, business, or industry of the members; to promote the general and material welfare of the members; to provide legal assistance to members; to establish a newspaper; to assist kindred organizations in upholding the rights and privileges of workers and generally to assist in the emancipation of labor; to establish One Big Union for Australian workers; to abolish the contract system in all industries; to replace the present competitive system by collective ownership of the means of production, distribution and exchange; to fight for the six-hour day; to oppose the Communist Party of Australia in all its aims; to oppose any body or persons which advocates or encourages the overthrow by force or violence of the established Government of the Commonwealth or of a state or of any civilised country or of organized government; to uphold the authority of constitutional government.

Publicists - Refer to The Australian Worker

Notes: In 1891 the Queensland Shearers' Union (formed 1886), the Queensland Labourers' Union (formed 1888) and other bush unions amalgamated to form the Amalgamated Workers' Union. The Australian Workers' Union was formed in the southern colonies in 1894 by the amalgamation of the Australian Shearers' Union (formed 1886) and the General Laborers' Union (formed 1890). In 1904 the Amalgamated Workers' Union merged with the southern Australian Workers' Union to form Queensland branches of that union. Some former branches of the Amalgamated Workers' Union (especially in north Queensland) did not participate in the 1904 merger and in 1910 they amalgamated with the Amalgamated Workers' Association of Queensland. In 1913 the latter union itself amalgamated with the Australian Workers' Union. Other Queensland unions amalgamated with the A.W.U. The Union is affiliated with the Australian Labor Party. It is not affiliated with the Trades and Labor Council of Queensland.

BRISBANE EASTER ALDERMASTON WALK COMMITTEE (1964)

Also known as the Consultative Committee and the "Easter - Aldermaston" Committee.

Objectives - To organize a march from Ipswich to Brisbane to pinpoint the main target area in the event of a nuclear attack.

Notes: The committee was composed of twenty committees (including the Brisbane Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament) with the Queensland Peace Committee predominating. In 1963 Brisbane Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament organized the first Aldermaston march in Brisbane modelled on the British Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament's marches between London and Aldermaston. In 1965 an Aldermaston Relay Walk Committee organized the protest.

BRISBANE INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S DAY COMMITTEE (1954-)

Objectives - To organize activities relating to International Women's Day (March 8th) each year.

Publicists - Edna Atchinson, Eva Bacon, Jane Calvert, M.L. Corley, Marge Croucher, Kate McGuckin, Jenny Prohaska, Tracey Smith, Doris Webb, Nancy Wills.

Notes: The Union of Australian Women (founded 1950) revived I.W.D. celebrations in 1953. The following year the Union of Australian Women initiated a committee to organise I.W.D. The committee, and especially the Day, involved other groups and individuals but the U.A.W. role remained primary until the mid-seventies when younger feminists initiated the major I.W.D. activities. Though this was at first in cooperation with the U.A.W. in 1979 the U.A.W. Committee was dissolved. Initiation of the committee then fell primarily to younger feminist groups and individuals.

BUILDING WORKERS' INDUSTRIAL UNION OF AUSTRALIA (QUEENSLAND BRANCH)
(BWIU) (1957-)

Registered as the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters, Joiners, Bricklayers and Plasters of Australasia, Queensland.

Objectives - To uphold the right of combination of labor, and to improve, protect and foster the best interests of the members and to assist them to obtain their rights under industrial and social legislation; to regulate the conditions under which all members may be employed; to join with other organizations with similar objectives, to establish a fund to support trade unionists; to organize the education of the members; to publish a journal and to further any schemes to establish labor research bureaux or union newspapers or radio stations; to establish various benefits for members; to render legal and other assistance to members for the recovery of wages or compensation for injuries, to protect the interests of the trade in all its Branches, and to assist other trades by any legal method.

Publicists - See The Building Worker and the Official Trades Union Directory (Trades and Labor Council of Queensland).

Notes: Carpenters formed a union in Queensland as early as 1861, eventually forming the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners of Australasia, Queensland Branch. Amalgamations led to changes of name in 1974 to Amalgamated Society of Carpenters, Joiners and Bricklayers of Australasia, Queensland Branch and in 1982 to the present name. The union is known not by its registered name but as the Building Workers' Industrial Union of Australia, Queensland Branch. The B.W.I.U. is part of the Queensland Building Trades Group which includes the Operative Painters and Decorators' Union, the Australian Building Construction Employees' and Builders Laborers' Federation and the Plumbers and Gasfitters Employees' Union.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST MORAL PERSECUTION (CAMP) (1971-)

Also known as the Camp Club

Objectives - To promote the principle that all people have a right to self-fulfillment regarding their sexual preference and can make the same positive contribution in the quest for betterment of society and happiness for all; to fight for the repeal of all laws relating to homosexual behaviour; to campaign against all forms of legal and social discrimination against homosexuals; to provide counselling for homosexuals; to maintain a social centre where homosexuals and others can meet in congenial surroundings.

Notes: By 1973-74 the social function of CAMP predominated over political action but in the late 1970's it assisted in the development of an alliance of gay liberation groups, the Gay Action Alliance, with which it is still closely associated. The lesbian group Patchwork is part of CAMP.

CAMPUS MORATORIUM COMMITTEE (1970-1972)

Also known as Campus Mobilization Committee and Campus Moratorium Mobilization Committee

Objectives - To organize support for the Vietnam moratorium campaign at the University of Queensland.

Notes: A wide variety of groups and individuals participated in this Committee. At various times they included Revolutionary Socialist Students Alliance, New Left Group, Revitalization of Christianity Movement, Draft Resisters' Union, Labor Club, Liberal Club, faculty groups etc. There were four moratorium campaigns each focussing on a march. They were on Friday May 8th 1970, Friday September 18th 1970, Wednesday June 30th 1971 and April 21st 1972. The Committee tended to become inoperative between campaigns. A Revolutionary Moratorium Committee was also active from August 1970.

COUNTRY AND PROGRESSIVE NATIONAL PARTY (1925-1936)

Formerly the Country Progressive Party (1925). Became the Queensland Country Party (1936-1961) and the United Australia Party (1936-1943).

Objectives - Reform of the land laws, encouragement of primary and secondary industry, individual effort as opposed to nationalization of industry, supremacy of the Arbitration Court in industrial matters, review of all taxation burdensome to primary and secondary industry, greater facilities for education, protection of sugar and cotton industries and railway reform.

Publicists - Refer to Lack, Clem. Three Decades of Queensland Political History 1929-1960. Queensland Government Printer, Brisbane, no date.

Notes: The Country and Progressive National Organisation of Queensland was the extra-parliamentary wing of this Party. The Country Party of Queensland and the United Party announced a coalition in 1924 and merged in 1925 to form the Country Progressive Party. Some United Party members were excluded from the new party and formed the National Party. When they were admitted the Country Progressive Party became the Country and Progressive National Party and it retained the earlier party's objectives and policies. It was funded by a Brisbane and southern business group, the National Union. The party contested the 1926 elections and lost. However, it formed a government from 1929 to 1932. The coalition was ended and the Party dissolved in 1936.

COUNTRY-NATIONAL ORGANISATION (1941-1945)

Formerly the Queensland Country Party (1936-1941) and the United Australia Party (1936-1943). Became the Australian Country Party, Queensland (1944-1974).

Publicists - C.V.W. Brown, B.F. Chapman, P.L. Goldenstedt, J.J. McDonald, Fergus McMaster, Frank Nicklin.

Notes: The United Australia Party and the Parliamentary wing of the Queensland Country Party merged to form this Organisation. However, a minority of Country Party members and the Party organization opposed the merger with the United Australia Party. As a result some members formed a separate Country section of the Party. Later in 1941 a Queensland Country Party conference decided to continue as a separate organization. The western division of the Queensland Country Party (which had been refused affiliation with the Queensland Country Party) also remained separate from the Country-National Organization. The United Australia Party wing disintegrated and in 1944 members joined the newly formed Liberal Party of Australia. In 1945 the Country-National Organization was formally dissolved.

DEMOCRATIC LABOR PARTY (1962-1977)

Previously the Queensland Labor Party (1957-1962)

Objectives - The pursuit of social justice, the decentralisation of political and economic power and the freedom of parliaments from sectional control. The D.L.P. also sought a strong defence force and was implacably opposed to communism.

Publicists - Refer to Reynolds, Paul L. The Democratic Labor Party.
Rigby, Australia, 1974.

Notes: The Queensland Labor Party became the state branch of the D.L.P. in 1962. However the Q.L.P. label was retained for the two elections of 1963 and 1966. The D.L.P. had close ties with the National Civic Council. The federal party was dissolved in 1977 but

DEMOCRATIC PARTY OF AUSTRALIA. QUEENSLAND DIVISION. (1953-1957)

Objectives - The promotion of a completely independent party; to attract the best citizens to Parliamentary service and to restore government to Parliament; to remove unnecessary restrictions from private and business activity; to restore primary production and have all habitable land fully settled; to maintain full employment; to develop joint consultations between workers and management; to provide efficient and adequate defence; to minimize taxation and rationalise public administration; to promote an Australian role in the British Commonwealth; to control public and private monopolies; to decentralize government; to reduce the cost of living; to free the Australian pound and make it convertible throughout the world; to be non-sectarian and support the interest and welfare of all citizens without regard to class or creed.

Publicists - Phyllis Cilento, Raphael Cilento, R. Condon, H.W. Herbert, Lance A. Jones, Leo Marienthal, A.A. Pike, C.W. Russell, E.J. Simpson, Harold Wright.

Notes: The Party originated in Sydney out of the work of the Australian Democratic Union. The Party basically adopted the platform of the Union and the membership of the Union was invited to join the Party, not without opposition from those who wished to adhere to the Union's predominantly educational emphasis. In Queensland the division of the Party merged with a group called the Independent Democrats (Chairman Raphael Cilento) which also emerged from the Union. They then stood candidates (Cilento, Herbert and Russell) for the 1953 Senate elections. They were not successful and the Party became defunct.

HERMIT PARK AUSTRALIAN LABOUR PARTY (1942-1949)

Also known as the Hermit Park Labour Party.

Became the North Queensland Labour Party (1949-1974) which became the North Queensland Party (1974-1977).

Publicists - Tom Aikens, Arthur Murgatroyd.

Notes: The Party was formed by the Hermit Park Branch of the Australian Labor Party. Hermit Park is a Townsville suburb. The Branch was expelled from the A.L.P. in 1942 as a result of associations with an organization proscribed by the Queensland Central Executive. The Branch had dominated Townsville municipal politics since 1939 and in its altered form continued to do so until 1949, for a period in alliance with the Communist Party. From 1944 onwards, Tom Aikens held the State Parliamentary seat of Mundingburra for the Party. After its change of name, the Party was still often referred to as the Hermit Park "ALP" or the Hermit Park Labour Party.

LIBERAL PARTY OF AUSTRALIA (QUEENSLAND DIVISION) (1949-)

Previously the Queensland People's Party (1943-1949)

Objectives - A patriotic democratic Australia dedicated to political liberty and the freedom and dignity of man, part of a world security order to maintain peace and in which defence is a universal duty. Australian democracy is to be maintained by: the rule of law, control of the executive by parliament, independence of the judiciary, freedom of speech, religion and association, a variety of ways of life, protection against exploitation, progress through individual initiative and the development of the national spirit. The Party aims to ensure: special benefits for ex-service personnel, social services, adequate medical services, constant employment and good wages, co-operation between employer and employee, rising living standards, education free of determination by wealth, and the encouragement of youth, family life and home ownership.

Publicists - Refer to Annual Convention Papers.

NEW STATE FOR NORTH QUEENSLAND MOVEMENT (1955-1967)

Objectives - To create a new northern state by legal separation from Queensland.

Publicists - C. Beames, W.J. Chapman, J. Feldt, A.D. Hooper, P. Kidd, F. Rossiter, W.H. Simms, L.E. Williams.

Notes: The Movement was connected with similar movements in Central Queensland (Capricornia New State Movement) and New England (New South Wales) and with the Federal Reform Association. The movement presented petitions in parliament (1957) but a 1959 meeting with Premier Nicklin to discuss the new state proposal was abortive. Agitation for new states dates back to the 1870's and continues today.

Objectives - To defend the constitution, particularly Section 92 which decrees that trade between the States shall be absolutely free; to carry out a grassroots education programme; to establish community leadership and obtain support from local representatives for the aims of the Association; to co-ordinate with other groups and concerned organizations and to stand in front of co-operating organizations to protect them from attack.

Publicists - W. Jauncey.

Notes: The Association attempted to co-ordinate with groups such as the Keep the Wool Industry Free Campaign, the Australian Growers' Wool Marketing Committee and various groups of importers, merchants and transporters. The organization was based on the Darling Downs and focussed on the grain industry.

QUEENSLAND ANTI-APARTHEID MOVEMENT (1971)

Also known as the Anti-Apartheid Steering Committee.

Objectives - To organize opposition to South African sporting tours in Australia. To oppose racism and inhumanity in Australia and South Africa.

Publicists - Barry Cotterill, Dave Franken, George Georges, Ken Howard, Gerry Jones, John Maguire, Terry Millar.

Notes: The Anti-Apartheid Movement began as an independent organisation involving a number of groups and individuals, including the Communist Party, the Alliance of Revolutionary Communists, the Socialist Union, the Australian Labor Party, unions, churches and university staff and students. It became A.L.P. dominated, supported by the Trades and Labour Council and was then called the Anti-Apartheid Steering Committee. Independent activity against the South African Football tour and the Queensland Government's State of Emergency developed from the University of Queensland especially after the commencement of a strike (22nd July).

QUEENSLAND COUNCIL FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF ABORIGINES AND TORRES STRAIT ISLANDERS (QCAATSI) (1958-1976?)

Originally known as the Queensland Council for the Advancement of Aborigines and Torres Islanders. Also known as the Queensland State Council for the Advancement of Aborigines and Torres Strait Islanders.

Objectives - To work for complete social, political, legal and economic equality for Aborigines and Torres Strait Islanders; to seek the integration of Aborigines and Torres Strait Islanders within the community while preserving valuable aspects of their culture; to provide various services to encourage self-reliance and economic independence amongst Aborigines and Torres Strait Islanders.

Publicists - Colin Bennett, Manfred Cross, Bob Cochrane, H. Gurnett, Muriel Langford, L.G. McBride, D. Marchisotti, Royce Perkins, J. Sweet, Kath Walker.

Notes: The Council split in 1961. A result was the formation of OPAL. The Council was affiliated with the Federal Council for the Advancement of Aborigines and Torres Strait Islanders (FCAATSI) (1957-1978) which became the National Aboriginal and Islanders Liberation Movement. FCAATSI was the first national Aboriginal group to demand aboriginal land rights. By 1975 the Council was effectively defunct.

QUEENSLAND IMMIGRATION CONTROL ASSOCIATION (1975-)

Formerly the Immigration Control Association. Queensland Branch.

Objectives - To protect the traditional Australian way of life and European culture and to provide a means for Australians to express themselves particularly in regard to immigration.

Publicists - J.C.A. Dique.

Notes: The National Immigration Control Association was formed in 1968 to oppose changes to immigration policy which began in 1966. It was proposed that the Association become a political party. The Queensland Branch was opposed to this and separated in 1975 to form the Queensland Immigration Control Association. The Association is connected with Queensland organizations (Aryan Nations, Australian National Front, Australian League of Rights) and organizations in other states (The Anglo Saxon Society, Australian Patriotic Lobby, the Australian National Alliance) opposed to present immigration policies.

QUEENSLAND LABOR PARTY (1957-1962)

Became the Democratic Labor Party (1962-1977)

Objectives - To re-form a strong Labor Party free of communism; to defend the parliamentary system; to work for full employment; to institute a just family wage based on productivity; to press for adequate national defence; to support aid for non-government schools.

Publicists - C. Byrne, V. Cooper, V. Gair, W. Moore, T. Moores, J. Skinner, E. Walsh.

Notes: The party should not be confused with the Queensland Labour Party (1905-1918). The Party was formed as a result of a split in the Australian Labor Party (Queensland Branch) in 1957. The Party became the state branch of the Democratic Labor Party in 1962 but retained the Q.L.P. label for the two elections of 1963 and 1966.

QUEENSLAND PEACE COMMITTEE FOR INTERNATIONAL CO-OPERATION AND DISARMAMENT (1959-)

Known as the Peace Committee. Initially the Queensland Sponsoring Committee for the Australia-New Zealand Congress for Disarmament and International Co-operation.

Objectives - To seek world peace through international co-operation and total world wide disarmament, subject to effective inspection and control.

Publicists - Hec Chalmers, Norma Chalmers, T. Chard, S. Clague, Doug Everingham, Alex MacDonald, Phil O'Brien, J. Sherrington, Vilma Ward, Rod White

Notes: The Sponsoring Committee was formed to organize a Queensland contribution to the congress held in Melbourne November 6-13 1959 (also known as the Melbourne Congress). After the Congress it became a Melbourne Congress Continuing Committee. When this became the Peace Committee it also absorbed most of the personnel and equipment of the Australian Assembly for Peace Queensland Association. Branches existed at various times in Rockhampton, Cairns, Townsville, Maryborough, Toowoomba and Ipswich and Brisbane suburban branches appeared in Norman Park, the Western Suburbs, the Northern Suburbs, Inala-Darra, West End and Wynnnum. The Peace Committee was associated with a number of other bodies including the Waterfront Peace Committee, the Building Workers' Industrial Union, the Seamen's Union Peace Committee, World Youth Forum Preparatory Group (1961), Youth Campaign for Peace (1963), Ex-Services Human Rights Association (1967), Hiroshima Day Committees, Aldermaston Consultative Committee and the Vietnam Action Committee (1966).

QUEENSLAND PEACE COUNCIL (1950-1956?)

Objectives - The cessation of war in Korea and the withdrawal of foreign armies, the conclusion of peace treaties with Japan and Germany and the prevention of their rearmament, the right of colonial peoples to independence, the condemnation of armed intervention by one state in the affairs of another, an end to war propaganda, unconditional prohibition of atomic, chemical and biological weapons of mass destruction and a reduction of conventional forces, normal trade and cultural relations between nations and the fulfillment by United Nations of its duty to develop peaceful co-operation among countries.

Publicists - D.J. Eaton, E.J. Hanson.

Notes: The World Peace Congress in Paris during April 1949 set up a continuing committee which became the World Peace Council. (Also known as the World Council of Peace). The Australian section was established as the Australian Peace Council in 1949. Branches were then formed in the states. Peace Councils typically went into crisis and/or dissolved as a result of the issues raised by the Russian invasion of Hungary in 1956 and as a result of opposition from the Labor Party. The Australian Peace Council was not dissolved until 1967 though it was inactive for some years before then.

SEAMEN'S UNION OF AUSTRALIA (QUEENSLAND BRANCH) (1943-)

Formerly the Seamen's Union of Australasia (1928-1943) and the Federated Seamen's Union of Australasia (1885-1928).

Publicists - Refer to Official Trades Union Directory (Trades and Labor Council of Queensland) and to Appendix seven in reference below.

Notes: In 1872 Seamen's Unions began to be formed in the Australian colonies. All but the Melbourne Seamen's Union became defunct. Sydney seamen formed a union in 1874 and with the Seamen's Union of Victoria formed a loose federation in 1876 known as the Federated Seamen's Union of Australasia. In 1906 it was formally organized as a federation. The port of Brisbane was organised originally as an agency of the Sydney Union. In 1885 it was recognised as an autonomous branch of the federation. It reverted to agency status after the 1890 maritime strike. It resumed branch status in 1900. The word "Federated" was dropped in 1928. The word "Australasia" was replaced by "Australia" in 1943.

SELF-MANAGEMENT GROUP (1971-1977)

Formerly the Revolutionary Socialist Party

Objectives - S.M.G. was unified around the essential demand for workers' councils as the basis of a real democracy. In these councils people will have equal decision-making and be paid an equal wage. The Group did not see itself as yet another leadership, merely as people in socialist struggle where they live and work.

Publicists - Sue Bissett, Bruce Doyle, Esme Garner, Greg George, Peter Kearney, Tony Kneipp, L. Beams, Brian Laver, A. Theodore, Bobby Walker.

SOCIALIST WORKERS PARTY (1971-)

Formerly Socialist Workers League

Objectives - To replace capitalism by an international co-operative system of social organisation (socialism) in which production satisfies human needs. Parliament and the present state apparatus will be replaced by organs of workers power. S.W.P. supports the fight against all forms of oppression created or perpetuated by capitalism.

Publicists - Mark Carey, Renfrey Clarke, Ron Poulsen .

Notes: S.W.P. is a trotskyite party associated with Resistance and, previously, the Socialist Youth Alliance. In 1975 another trotskyite group, the Communist League, merged with S.W.P.

SOCIETY FOR DEMOCRATIC ACTION (1966-1969)

Formerly Students for Democratic Action

Objectives - To work against nuclear war, the Vietnam war, conscription, world poverty and the unwarranted interference of the State. Emphasized participatory democracy and the superiority of morality over material values. Believed that democratic freedom had to be fought for and, once achieved, had to be protected.

Publicists - Mick Bergin, Tony Bowen, Carlene Crowe, David Guthrie, Alan Knight, Matthew Lambourne, Janita Laver, Dave Nadel, Phil Richardson, Dick Shearman (in addition to those in Students for Democratic Action).

Notes: Involved in Civil Liberties Co-ordinating Committee (1967). Linked with Students in Dissent and University Conscription Committee. In March 1968 S.D.A. founded FOCO at Trades Hall as an independent, radical cultural centre. It involved music, poetry, film, theatre, a bookshop and a newsletter. It was largely run by off-campus activists. FOCO was closed by the Trades and Labor Council in May 1969. The dissolution of S.D.A. in April 1969 reflected a desire to find revolutionary forms of action.

STUDENTS FOR DEMOCRATIC ACTION (1966)

Became Society for Democratic Action

Objectives - To work against nuclear war, the Vietnam war, conscription, world poverty and the unwarranted interference of the State. Emphasized participatory democracy and the superiority of morality over material values. Believed that democratic freedom had to be fought for and, once achieved, had to be protected.

Publicists - Jim Cleary, Bob Gaines, Jane Gaines, Gwynn Guyatt, Brian Laver, Chuck Long, Mike O'Neill, Gail Salmon, Mitch Thompson.

Notes: The Group was formed by people involved in the Vietnam Action Committee. The change of name in November 1966 reflected a desire to involve people other than students.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL OF QUEENSLAND (1922-)

Objectives - To act as a unifying body for trade unions in Queensland.

Publicists - From 1970 refer to the annual Official Trades Union Directory.

Notes: The T.L.C. was first set up in 1885 then disbanded in 1889 to make way for the Australian Labor Federation. It was reformed briefly in 1903. It was voted out of existence by the Second Trade Union Congress in 1911 and finally re-established in 1922 with the affiliation of forty-six unions. It amalgamated the Trades Hall Board, the Eight Hour Day Committee and the Brisbane Industrial Council. The formation of the present T.L.C. coincided with, and in fact was a direct result of the occupancy of the present Trades Hall by the unions in April 1922. The T.L.C. is the state branch of the Australian Council of Trade Unions.

TRANSPORT WORKERS UNION OF AUSTRALIA. QUEENSLAND BRANCH (1939-)

Formerly the Amalgamated Road Transport Workers' Union of Australia (1926-1939).

Objectives - To uphold the principle of the combination of labour and to promote, foster and maintain industrial organisation of all workers and to promote and foster the best industrial interests of all members in any matter such as: improved conditions, preference of employment for members, industrial oppression, a greater share of the produce of their labour, to assist Australian Labor Party candidates, workers' compensation and assistance in home buying.

Publicists - For the period from 1970 refer to the Official Trades Union Directory (Trades and Labor Council of Queensland). For earlier periods refer to The Transport Worker (Brisbane).

Notes: The federal Union began in 1906 as the Federated Carters' and Drivers' Union. The Queensland Union began in 1906 as the Brisbane Trolleyman, Draymen and Carters' Union. In 1909 the name was changed to the Federated Carters' and Drivers' Industrial Union of Australia - Brisbane Branch. In the years following various transport unions began amalgamating eventually forming the Federated Carters' and Drivers' Union - Queensland Branch in 1917. The name was changed in 1926 to the Amalgamated Road Transport Workers' Union of Australia - Queensland Branch.

UNIVERSITY OF QUEENSLAND LABOR CLUB (1946-)

Also known as the University of Queensland A.L.P. Club

Objectives - To support social democratic principles and policies of reform that are a feature of the Australian Labor Party and other labor style parties. Emphasizes socialist policies while supporting mixed economy capitalism.

Publicists - Bruce Dickson, Geoff Dow, John Ellis, Frank Gardiner, Bob Harlow, Keith Horsley, Rosemary Howell, Caroline Mann, Jim Nolan, Peter Thompson.

Notes: In 1964 the A.L.P. Club split over the issue of communist membership. This led to the formation of the Left Club (1964-1966). In 1969 the Labor Club was prominent in draft resistance through its University Conscription Committee. It became defunct in the early seventies and was revived in 1973 in response to the 1972 elections. It became defunct again but revived in 1977. It is not an affiliated body of the A.L.P.

Objectives - Repeal of all abortion laws, free abortion on demand, no forced sterilization, free sterilization on demand, free, safe contraception, sex education.

Publicists - Anna McCormack, Rita Hermus, Joanne Watson

Notes: Formed nationally as a result of a Women's Electoral Lobby conference. The Queensland section became largely based on various campuses in the early 1980's. Part of Women's Campaign for Abortion against 1980 legislation. The Campaign shared the Women's Centre with Children by Choice until 1974. It then worked with the University of Queensland Women's Rights Committee until University of Queensland Union funds were restricted in regard to the abortion issue in 1978.

WOMEN'S LIBERATION (1971-1977)

Also known as Women's Liberation Movement

Objectives - To demand: control of our bodies, sexual freedom (including changes in child rearing), freedom from sexual limitation in education and the right to work.

Publicists - Carolyn Beatson, Lynda Boland, Helen Crowley, Ann Dogget, Janet D'Urso, Lynn Fleming, Julie Bowen Hawkins, Sue Russell, Katrina Snowden, Merle Thornton.

Notes: Meetings began late 1969. An active movement was first mooted in 1970 but formal activities began in 1971. A loosely knit group used this name on publications in the 1970's. Women's Liberation was a catalyst group from which most other groups grew.

WORKING WOMEN'S CHARTER CAMPAIGN (1977-1980)

Briefly known as the Independent Working Women's Charter Campaign

Objectives - To bring a broader, more political scope to the overall campaign for a working women's charter and to concentrate on contact with the rank and file. To take into account non-unionized women in the workforce, unemployed women and those in domestic work.

Publicists - Jane Calvert, Megan Martin, Leslie Wenck

Notes: This group had a different emphasis to the Working Women's Charter Committee which implements the Australian Council of Trade Unions Working Women's Charter. According to the Working Women's Charter Campaign the demands in their charter were "much clearer and more positive" and reflected the fact that workers' needs "extend beyond the workplace". This campaign became inoperative and dissolved in favour of the Working Women's Charter Committee.

WORKING WOMEN'S CHARTER COMMITTEE (1978-)

Objectives - To implement the Australian Council of Trade Unions Working Women's Charter. To reflect the changing needs of working women in the Charter. To bring women unionists together and to involve more women in their unions so that unions will take the needs of women members more seriously and so that they will view issues in terms other than strictly industrial.

Publicists - Barbara Nelson Atkin, Shirley Betts, Marie Crisp, Mary Kelly, Margaret McFarlane, Jean O'Connor, Thora Soranson, Kath Thomas

Notes: Also involved Labour Women (Australian Labor Party). Absorbed Queensland Women's Trade Union Committee. Membership open only to members of the Trades and Labour Council affiliated unions. The Charter idea and a first version arose from the Australian Women's Trade Union Conference (August 1976). The Charter was amended at the Working Women's Charter Campaign Conference (August, 1977) and presented to the 1977 A.C.T.U. Congress where an A.C.T.U. Charter was adopted. The Queensland W.W.C.C. began in November, 1978.

YOUNG AUSTRALIAN COUNTRY PARTY QUEENSLAND (1968-1973)

Formerly Young Country Party (1958-1968)

Became Young National Party of Australia

Notes: The Young Country Party began in Queensland in 1958. It assisted in the formation of similar organizations in other states and encouraged the formation of a federal Young Australian Country Party. When this was achieved in 1968 it changed its name to Young Australian Country Party - Queensland.

YOUNG COMMUNIST MOVEMENT (1971-1975?)

Objectives - Workers' control, self-management and a genuinely free socialist society. Other demands included the ending of exploitation of youth by establishing a minimum living wage for youth and all students. The Y.C.M. was concerned to ensure a young communist presence in every area of youth revolt.

Publicists - Peter Lammiman.

Notes: Y.C.M. was connected with the Communist Party of Australia. It became defunct in the mid-seventies.
